Freshman Election Date Set For December 12

James Kane, Chairman of the Elections Committee, has announced that Freshmen elections will be held on Wednesday, December 12 in the lobby of the Student Union Building from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Presidential nominees include Richard Higdon, an English major, Richard Kraft, a history major, and Robert Santoni, an accounting major.

The three candidates for vice-president include John Westerfield, a Chemistry major, James Snyder, a business administration major and, a math major, Robert Diegelman.

There are two candidates for secretary, Ed Broka, a chemistry major, and John Schap, an English major.

Candidates for treasurer are John Griffin, a history major, Joseph Leonard, history major, and Donald Pierpont, an economics major.

The office of Freshmen Student Council Representative has only one nominee, Ronald Siewierski, a political science major.

Results

Results of the election will be released on Wednesday afternoon. The representative will be sworn in as members of the Student Council on Friday.

The election committee hopes that the freshmen will elect their officers according to qualifications rather than personalities.

Grad Information Library Initiated By Dr. Hands

Dr. Charles Hands, Chairman of the Fellowship Committee, has announced that the proposed Fellowship Office has officially been opened in rooms F-6 and F-7, effective immediately.

Additional Information

Each student who has completed a questionnaire will receive a list of the holdings of the Fellowship Committee as of November 19 and a helpful "tip sheet" on how to apply for fellowships. Students who have completed the questionnaire will also receive an announcement through the mail whenever additional information pertinent to their fields is received.

Mr. Pritchett will be in this office on Mondays from 1 to 3 p.m., Dr. Boyle on Tuesdays from 2 to 4 p.m., Mr. O'Donovan S.J. on Wednesdays from 11 to 1 p.m., and Dr. Hands on Fridays from 10 to 12 p.m. Interested students may come in and browse through the large quantity of literature available any time the office is open; there is no necessity to consult the faculty member on duty.

Questionnaires

Anyone wishing to be placed on the mailing list should obtain a questionnaire from either Mr. O'Donovan S.J. or Father Jenneman.

Glee Club Presents "Messiah" At Lyric

Tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. the Loyola College Glee Club under the direction of Don Haines Guidotti, in conjunction with six other glee clubs and the Baltimore Symphony under the direction of Elyakum Shapira, will present Handel's "Messiah" at the Lyric Theater.

In addition to four professional soloists, three hundred voices, consisting of seven college glee clubs (including in addition to Loyola, Mt. St. Agnes College, Morgan State College, Marymount College, Frostburg State Teachers' College, and Dickinson College) will constitute the chorus.

No Concert

Due to the length of the work, as well as the number of rehearsals necessary, the Glee Club will not give the usual Christmas Concert this year on campus.

Ticket prices for tomorrow night's concert range from $.50 for balcony seats to $3 for box seats; they may be obtained from the Baltimore Symphony at Le. 9-8484 or from the Central Ticket Agency at Pl. 2-4797.

Attendance

Glee Club President Jerry Peters urges the student body to attend this, the first Glee Club Concert of the season.

Panel Discussion Set On Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Leo J. O'Donovan, S.J. has announced that on Wednesday, December 12, at 11 a.m., at Ruzicka Hall, a panel discussion on "The Problem of the Nuclear Weapon" will be held. The panel will consist of Dr. James Gumnick, Mr. Hans Mair, and Fr. Thomas Higgins, S.J.

Dr. Gumnick, head of the Physics department, has agreed to speak on the problem from a physicist's point of view. Mr. Mair, an instructor in Political Science will discuss the problem as a political scientist sees it. Finally, Fr. Higgins, a professor of Ethics and the acting chairman of the Philosophy department, will conclude the discussion with comments and observations from an ethical viewpoint.

Contemporary Problem

Since the problem is so contemporary and the threat of nuclear war so plausible, all student and faculty members should find the discussion both interesting and rewarding.

The panel itself will run roughly fifty minutes, followed by a break, and then free questions from the floor.

Both students and faculty members are encouraged to attend the panel, and to question the panel.

PANEL MEMBERS: (l. to r.) Father Thomas Higgins, S.J., Mr. Leo J. O'Donovan, S.J. and Mr. Hans Mair discuss plans for the coming discussion.

Editorial*Dig Down, Dig In...

Without good leaders, the most enthusiastic group efforts are doomed to failure. Good leaders are indispensable because without their coordination, there would be no means to transform the energy of individuals into energy for the achievement of the common good.

Next Friday, the Freshmen Class members will be asked to vote for a governing body which will lead them through the coming year. They will be asked to vote for people in whom they can place their trust and who will reward their confidence with unceasing effort for the class cause.

Of course, the major questions in our minds at the present time are: Will the freshmen consider the merits and demerits of each candidate before they vote? Will they base their votes on the issues of the campaign or on petty high school allegiances? Will they back a man according to his capabilities or will they vote only on his personality?

The results of the voting will be announced soon, but the significance of these results will not be fully understood until the year ends. It is only then that the satisfaction which has resulted from having voted for a good candidate or the dis-satisfaction which has resulted from having voted for an inferior candidate will be made manifest.

Alpha Sigma Nu's

This week Alpha Sigma Nu would like to bring to the fore another aspect of Baltimore life in which Loyola College Graduates have excelled. This is the business world. In past weeks this column has singled out individuals in the fields of medicine and politics. A look at the wide open business world will give you an idea of the amount of talent and versatility there is among the men of Loyola.

Mr. Daniel H. Bathon, '43, a CPA, is the Executive Vice-President of the Elk Paper Manufacturing Company. Mr. Lingard I. Whiteford, '27, administers the position of Purchasing Agent for the Maryland Glass Company. In private business, the Bouchelle Equipment Company is owned by Mr. Robert B. Bouchelle, who graduated in the class of 1930. Also in the class of '30, is Mr. Martin F. Knott, President of American Metalcore Systems, Inc. Mr. William M. Burke, '42, who has written numerous articles for business magazines, is the Deputy Chief for the Bureau of Old Age Survivors Insurance. Mr. J. Edward Macatee, Jr. '37, besides being the Director in five Companies and Corporations is the assistant Vice-President of the Maryland National Bank.

These men who have been cited above are but a brief sampling of the numerous Loyola Graduates who have made their presence felt in the realm of Baltimore business. Space would not permit us to list them all. One thing can be said about these men; they have created a reputation for themselves and for Loyola and it is up to each and every student attending this college to uphold and further this reputation.

Special Feature:*Fr. Davish In Europe

On June 26 of last year, Father William Davish sailed from New York for fourteen months of study and travel abroad during his sabbatical year. Father Davish has been at Loyola for twelve years and is head of the Theology department. After a brief stay in London, Father lodged in the garret of a student dormitory high above Paris. He took graduate courses in theology at L'Institute Catholique and also served as auxiliary chaplain for the personnel at the nearby U.S. Army headquarters. Among the distinguished professors whose lectures he followed were Oscar Cullmann and Fathers Danielou, Lecter, Henry, Feuillet, Bouillard, and Cazelles.

Extensive Tour

In summer, 1961, Father toured Brussels, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Munich, Vienna, Innsbruck, Florence, Venice, Avignon, Marseilles, and Lourdes. He also made side trips to the nearby French countryside, up the Rhine, and down the Danube. During his four-week Easter vacation, Father visited Rome, Athens, Cairo, Beirut, Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, and Galilee.

Father Davish was in Paris during the height of the Algerian crisis. Les Plastiquiers were active and there were always several gendarmes stationed nearby. On the afternoon of January 23, as Father was quietly walking along the Seine, an OAS bomb exploded in the French Foreign Office across the Quai d'Orsay. The Foreign Office was damaged extensively, and over thirty clerks were injured. Father Davish administered absolution to one man who was killed.

Spanish Trip

While in Manresa, Spain, Father made a retreat at a Jesuit Retreat house located over the very cave where St. Ignatius wrote his Spiritual Exercises.

Father Davish returned to the U.S. on a very small, slow boat that included seven hundred foreign exchange students among its passengers. He served as chaplain to the 150 Catholics among them.

Commenting on his sabbatical year, Father said, "I enjoyed every minute of it."

Father William Davish, S.J.

The Skeptic Tank

This week, we must give Chaucer equal time. First, to familiarize you with the Middle English, I quote you something found on the side of a castle:

"Anon bigge," quoth Hoste,
"Happene list lyking oon moot Wilhom syn verboten."

Translated it means, "no handball playing after 6 p.m. or before 7 a.m."

Here, then, is one of Chaucer's first works written when he was head of a London school:

"Nercotikes and opie fyn or fleeth as faste and anon
let fly,
to Thebes-ward, Til Fortune
had brought him in the snare."

Translation: "all students bringing chariots or wagons to school must park behind Thebes-Troy Hall with the right rear and left front wheel --which must have twelve spokes-- touching the orange curb with a force no less than two dronds or exerting no more than a force of seven shots." Aren't we lucky things changel (Please reply "yes" to this in case of spies.)

Movie Titles

Movie titles point to some of the questions of importance of today. The father of Tarzan's mate, when searching the jungle six years after she was lost, asked: "What Ever Happened To Baby Jane?" They also point to many problems: "Girls, Girls, Girls!" They also answer some of those important questions: "Girls, Girls, Girls!"

Ryan's Rise

John Ryan showed up at the last mixer with two eggs, flour, and other such items in hopes of making a cake! He didn't beat around the bush--he just didn't have the dough to buy one.

The pre-meds would like to take this opportunity to thank the janitor who threw the fish-fry for them last week. Unfortunately, they could not be on hand to witness the event, but Junior President Jim Kane was reported to be ecstatic over the possibilities of increasing student-janitor relationships.

Did you hear about Hubert Humphries understudy in the Senate. I guess you'd call him sort of a "half-whip."

Well, I'll see you next week but remember until then: "All is not as black as it looks." Except perhaps in the wrestling room, or the track locker room or . . .

The Reviewing Stand

by Tom McCormick

There comes a time when one realizes how personal and immediate--how subjective--art can be. This realization came to me when I saw A Kind of Loving.

Directed by John Schlesinger, this British film I suppose will be classed with the "angry young man" genre. However, the young man in this picture is more disillusioned than angry. The situation he finds himself in is ordinary enough: boy meets girl, awkward courtship follows, girl becomes pregnant, boy marries girl. The kind of loving portrayed is that kind which happens when you are young and in love: sometimes happy and always uncertain. Had the film been done less seriously and competently it would have been mere pretentious drivel and not the first-rate drama it is.

If one word can characterize the film, then the adjective "human" qualifies. The people, the situation, the dialogue, the setting, all are unforgivably human from first scene to last. Do not misconstrue this for obnoxious realism. Their humanity may make you writhe uncomfortably in your seat but they are immeasurably understandable.

Schlesinger presents the story against the drab backdrop of English middle-class life, accenting and subtly attacking the staunch respectability and thoughtless industry of their lives. Vic Brown faces this world and everyone faces a similar one. For Vic, life and love become more particular and real, less vague and romanticized and with this insight comes the brutal realization of the responsibilities which marriage and society impose upon him.

The film is excellently acted by all concerned. The two principals, Alan Bates as the handsome and pensive Vic, and June Ritchie as his pretty and vacant girl, put in near--perfect performances.

In closing, A Kind of Loving is a quietly powerful and intimately meaningful film.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Phil Pierpont

Next Wednesday afternoon, as is noted in the article below this one, Red Sullivan, player-coach of the Baltimore Clippers, will make a guest appearance at Loyola. Anyone who has ever met the Clipper mentor will tell you that he is as entertaining a speaker as he is aggressive on the Civic Center ice. The Greyhound Sports department urges that a large number of students be present next Wednesday morning in Ruzicka Hall for an interesting and entertaining meeting with Red Sullivan.

Tourney Talk

There should be no need to encourage Loyola students to attend the Invitational Basketball Tournament out of loyalty to their team and school. This is taken for granted. However, there are other good reasons for attending the Tourney. First rate small college basketball will be on display. The three visiting teams, Ohio Wesleyan, West Chester and Lafayette posted an impressive aggregate record last season of 51-18. Therefore, even if you have no loyalty to your team or school, let your motive for attending the tournament the fine basketball which can be seen.

Don't wait until the last minute to buy your tournament tickets. The seats are on a first-come, best-seat basis.

Clipper Mentor To Speak Here Next Wednesday

On Wednesday, December 12th, at 11:00 a.m., the Loyola College Block "L" Club will present a talk by Red Sullivan, the popular player-coach of the Baltimore Clippers Ice Hockey team. The talk, which is open to the entire student body, will be held in Xavier Lounge.

Mr. Sullivan's appearance is part of a program to revitalize the Block "L" Club. Another club activity in full swing at the present time is the promotion of the sale of tickets for the Loyola Invitational Basketball Tournament to be held on December 28th and 29th. Last year only a handful of Loyola students witnessed their team's fine victory in the Tourney. The Block "L" Club hopes for a better showing by the student body this year. The Tournament promises to display small college basketball of the highest caliber.

Student tickets for the Tourney cost $1.00 per night and must be purchased in advance. Tickets at the door cost $1.50. To facilitate ticket sales, the Block "L" Club has set up a ticket table at the entrance to the cafeteria. Tickets can be purchased at this table every day from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

The Loyola mermen prepare to dive in a meet against Shepherd College held last Tuesday.

Tough Schedule Looms For Swimming Champions

This week, the Mason-Dixon championship swimming team swam into action with the start of the 1962-63 season against Shepherd College from Shepherdstown, West Virginia. With almost the same squad back from last year plus some additional strength from the freshmen class, the Hounds natators figure to provide another thrill-packed season. Their first big test will come this weekend when the team travels to the New York area. Tonight they will meet Seton Hall and tomorrow's contest pits the Hounds against St. Peter's of New Jersey and Holy Cross College in a tri-meet.

Test On Tuesday

Although every meet is vital, and every coach professes to play them "one at a time," the meet with Washington and Lee next Tuesday will certainly provide the biggest test for the Greyhound squad. A win in this meet will require a real all-out effort from every member of the team and will also show the amount of conditioning of each squad in this young season.

Coach Bill Klarner is pleased with the Hounds' progress. He believes that this year's team is ahead of last year's as far as conditioning at this stage of the year goes.

Tough Schedule

With another tough schedule including LaSalle, West Chester, and A.U., the natators will welcome your support at their meets.

Swimmers Shave To Go Faster

A controversy rages in the swimming world today concerning the increase in speed supplied by the shaving of hair all over the body. Hound coach Bill Klarner claims that this increase is not psychological but physiological.

As proof of his assertions, Klarner points out examples on his team. Marty Pilsch's 440 time was lowered from 5:23 to 5:12 after shaving. Klarner's theory explains the increase in speed in two ways. First, removing hair is like removing barnacles from a ship. Second, shaving makes the skin more sensitive to flaws in the stroke. This latter explanation is an original one by the coach which has much merit. At any rate, Coach Klarner claims that shaving is here to stay.

RALLY ROUND: The Greyhound basketball pep rally held last Tuesday was a great success. It featured words from players, cheers, and speeches from avid Hound backers.

Outlook Is Optimistic As Basketball Season Begins

Prior to last Tuesday's opener with Western Maryland, the Hounds traveled to Lancaster, Pa. where Franklin and Marshal College provided them with their final pre-season scrimmage. The Hounds found Franklin and Marshal an easy victim as they completely outclassed them. Loyola's superiority was most in evidence against the Franklin and Marshal zone defense. As the Greyhounds embark on their new season, the outlook is bright despite the glaring and much-discussed lack of height. This is a team that plays as though they are unaware of any height disadvantage, making the most of what they do have; speed, hustle, experience and most important, desire to win. Besides the lack of big men this team is one without an individual "star" who can be counted on for 20 to 25 points a game--win or lose. Instead they have eleven men capable of double figures on any given night. Each man knows the abilities and limitations of each of his teammates.

Defensively, the Hounds are also strong. Defense, de-emphasized in much of today's college basketball, is a touchy point with Coach Nap Doherty who would rather see a player miss five straight shots than let his opponent drive past him for a lay-up.

In summary, the hounds are a fast, well-balanced, well-coached, experienced team with a keen desire to win.

Hound Grapplers Possess Numbers And Experience

As the wrestling team rounds out its second full week of practice, the veterans are beginning to slim down, and the rookies are taking on the appearances of wrestlers.

Vets Work Together

In the lighter weights, team captain Ruck McCarthy, Alex Schlipp and Spider Baker, currently around the same weight, provide each other with good workouts. McCarthy will probably wrestle at 130; Baker, if he sheds enough weight at 123, and Schlipp will hold down the 137 spot. Among the newcomers to the squad Frosh Cammaliatio, at 130, and Leo Jubb, at 137, are in a good position to learn from the above-mentioned vets.

Butch Emmett and Mel Kodenski will probably wrestle in the middleweights at 147 and 157. Newcomers Tony Miller and M. Smith may provide some competition for Bill Le Fevre at 167. Tom Milligan, is still the choice at 177.

Big Men

The big men, Lenny Eiswert, at 195, and heavyweight Denny Hupp are fortunate in their bigness in that Coach Charlie Carey, at 220, works out with them.

Intramurals

The Intramural Basketball season was officially initiated last Friday as two games took place. The action featured two freshmen teams, the Wilted Sticks and the Far Tars, opposed to two upperclass opponents, the 1.5's and the Flermendibles.

1.5's Triumph

The 1.5's upheld their upperclass honor by winning 59-15 as Joe Anton led the scoring with 16 points. Both Fahey and Ehrhart also hit for double figures for the 1.5's and Langbaum was high scorer for the Wilted Sticks with 10 points.

Frosh Win

The Flermendibles, on the other hand, came out on the shorter end of their contest as they were beaten 38-13 by the Far Tars. Both Gummer and Schneider scored in double figures and Paul DeBoy helped with 7 points. Walk led the Flermendible scoring with 9 points.

A large number of games are scheduled before Christmas this year since over twenty teams have signed up to play, and there can only be one winner. Games scheduled this week include the Bombers vs. Fern Docks, and Polar Bears vs. Primitive Streaks on Wednesday, and today the Mavericks play the Far Tars, and Finks play the Rebels.

Bowling

There is an interesting contest developing in the Intramural Bowling League between the Fouline-5 and the Bombers.
